Fay Bainter Rites Friday In California

Associated Press HOLLYWOOD — Funeral services for Oscar-winning actress Fay Bainter will be held Friday at All Saints Episcopal Church in Beverly Hills.

Miss Bainter, 74, died Tuesday at her home in Los Angeles after a long illness. She won an Academy Award in 1937 for her portrayal of Aunt Belle in the film "Jezebel" for which co-star Bette Davis also won an Oscar.

Miss Bainter won the Oscar four years after making her screen debut as Lionel Barrymore's wife in "This Side of Heaven." Miss Bainter played roles on Broadway before turning to films at 41.

She once told an interviewer she did not regard herself as the star type. "What can you do? Give me certain character parts and let it go at that. There aren't enough parts to justify stardom for a woman of my type," she said.
